

The benefits of switching to electronic payslips

With GDPR in force and affecting every part of how personal data is processed, electronic payslips can help your business whilst providing a GDPR compliant way of handling your employees' pay information.

1 Friendly to the environment

Moving to secure digital confidential communications can help your business take a large step towards a low carbon footprint and an environmentally friendly operation particularly where green regulation is increasing (such as SECR).

This is an increasingly important consideration for your customers your employees and will help contribute to positive PR, over and above increasingly compulsory environmental regulation.

2 GDPR compliance

Information delivered electronically and directly to your employees.

Payslips remain encrypted for the whole journey.

3 Speed and efficiency

Payslips are produced at the click of a button

Not using portal technology so no issues of users losing passwords etc. Portal technology is subject to prolific attacks

Users receive their payslip in the email inbox

4 Convenience for your employees

Employees can access their pay information 24/7

Accessible via smartphone, tablet or computer

Once set up, employees do not need to worry about losing their passwords or losing their paper payslips

Employees can handle their own data and can choose to view or print their own payslips

5 Security

We use a highly secure encrypted platform. No portals – these can be compromised and the user has to download their data and that is NOT secure

Employees receive automatically generated and high strength alpha-numeric passwords, which are hashed in the database using SHA256

6 Reduced costs

No expensive printing

No need to buy payslips

No postage or distribution costs
